

The CAI views technology as enables to achieve the best possible solutions.

While the technology is not always a requirement for success, it is a very important element. The CAI seeks out the best technology to support existing or improved processes that requires the least disruption while producing both cost-avoidances and cost-savings. The result is a higher return on investment (ROI) for our customers. Where possible, the CAI utilizes non-proprietary technology enablers to provide the customer the greatest flexibility at the lowest cost.

The CAI foundation of “providing the best material and non-material solution regardless of source” frees our teams from any one solution to work with our customers in finding the technology that best meets their needs now an in the future.